Entry 3 Reading: Lessons 4 to 13

Ten more two-hour lessons. Lessons 4 to 12 each train one question type or text type from the paper. Lesson 13 is a full mock.

Lesson 4: True or false, and proving it

Learners finish able to decide whether a statement is true or false by finding the exact sentence in the text, and to spot the small words that make a statement false. The paper uses this question type for main points and vocabulary (AC1.1, AC1.4).

Materials: Handouts 4A, 4B and 4C, one per learner. Two cards per learner marked TRUE and FALSE.

Activity 1: Small words, big difference (25 minutes, teacher-led)

1. Say six statements about the class and the room. Learners hold up a card. Make three of them false with one small word: “All of you live in Hackney.” “We only have class on Mondays.” “Everyone here is a woman.”
2. For each false one, ask which word made it false. Write these words on the board in a box labelled danger words: all, every, everyone, only, always, never, nobody.
3. Add a second box, number words: more than, fewer than, most, half, nearly, over, about. Check meaning with quick questions: “Is nearly half more or less than 50%?” “Is over 100 the same as 100?”
4. Teach the routine and leave it on the board: read the statement; underline the danger word or number word; find the sentence in the text; decide.
5. Hand out 4A. Do the first item together. Learners do the rest in pairs, underlining the word that decides the answer.
6. Feedback with the cards: read each statement, cards up, then one learner explains.

Activity 2: Read the report (20 minutes)

1. Hand out 4B face down. Write the headline on the board: Evening Classes Fill Up Fast. Ask what fill up fast could mean. Ask learners to guess two things the report will say.
2. Learners read silently for three minutes. Check their guesses.
3. Ask three oral gist questions: Is the number of learners going up or down? Is the report all good news? What will the council do?
4. Read the text aloud while learners follow. Clarify only report, childcare and turn away, by pointing to the clues around them.

Activity 3: True or false with proof (30 minutes)

1. Hand out 4C. Learners complete section A alone. For each statement they tick True or False and write the paragraph number where they found the proof.
2. Pairs compare. If they disagree, each reads the proof sentence aloud to the other.
3. Class feedback. Call on one learner for the answer and another for the proof sentence. For statement 3, show how all makes it false: most are between 25 and 45, but one is 81.
4. Point out that the statements use different words from the text: support their children’s school work for help with homework. Ask learners to find two more examples.

Activity 4: Make it true (20 minutes)

1. Learners rewrite the five false statements from section A so that they are true, in section B. They may change only one or two words.
2. Do the first on the board as a model: “Fewer adults” becomes “More adults”.
3. Pairs check each other’s sentences against the text.
4. Hear one corrected sentence from each pair. Accept any version that matches the text.
5. Learners then answer section C alone, as extra exam practice with the same text.

Activity 5: Write your own (25 minutes)

1. Each pair writes four statements about the report: two true and two false. Each false one must use a danger word or a number word.
2. Pairs swap with another pair, answer, and write the paragraph number as proof.
3. Pairs return the papers and mark them.
4. Choose the three trickiest statements and put them to the whole class with the cards.
5. Close by asking: “What do you do before you tick True or False?” The class answers: “Find the sentence.”

Handout 4A: Small words

Read the text. Is the statement true or false? Underline the word that helps you decide.

	The text says	The statement says	True or false?
1	Most shops close at six.	All shops close at six.
2	The bus is sometimes late.	The bus is always late.
3	Tickets cost five pounds for adults. Children go free.	Children do not pay.
4	The café opens only at weekends.	The café is closed on Tuesday.
5	Nearly half the class passed.	More than 50% of the class passed.
6	You must not use a phone in the exam.	Phones are not allowed in the exam.

Handout 4B: Evening Classes Fill Up Fast

LOCAL NEWS

1 A new report shows that more adults in East London are studying in the evening. Last year, about 3,000 people joined an evening class. This year the number is over 4,500.

2 The most popular subjects are English, maths and computer skills. Cooking and sewing classes are also full. Most learners are between 25 and 45 years old, but the oldest student is 81.

3 The report asked learners why they study. Over half said they want to help their children with homework. Others want to meet people or to feel more confident when they speak to a doctor or a teacher.

4 Not everything in the report is good news. Many learners said it is hard to find childcare in the evening. Some travel a long way because there is no class near their home. One college had to turn away 200 people because it did not have enough teachers.

5 The council says it will open two new centres next September. They will offer classes in the morning as well as the evening. “We know that parents need different times,” said Councillor Grace Mensah.

6 Classes cost nothing for people who receive benefits. Other learners pay about four pounds a week.

Lesson 5: Letters and emails, two linked texts

Learners finish able to say who wrote a letter or email, who it is for and why, and to answer questions that name one of two linked texts. Task 2 of the paper often pairs a message with its reply.

Materials: Handouts 5A, 5B and 5C, one per learner. The six strips from 5A section B cut up, one set per pair.

Activity 1: The parts of a letter (25 minutes, teacher-led)

1. Draw a large empty letter on the board with six boxes down the page. Ask what goes in a letter or email. Fill the boxes with the class: greeting; why I am writing; details; what I want; closing line; name.
2. Ask who learners write to in English. Collect on the board in two columns: people they know (friends, classmates) and people they do not know (council, landlord, doctor, college office).
3. Teach formal and informal with pairs of phrases. Say “Hi Sam” and “Dear Mr Khan”. Ask which is for a friend. Do two more pairs orally.
4. Hand out 5A. Learners match the informal and formal phrases in section A, alone, then check in pairs.
5. Feedback. Teach the closing rule in one line: Dear Sir or Madam ends with Yours faithfully; Dear plus a name ends with Yours sincerely. Exam texts follow this rule, so it tells the reader whether the writer knows the name.

Activity 2: Who, to whom, why (25 minutes)

1. Hand out 5B. Before reading, learners look only at the top and bottom of each text for 30 seconds. Ask: Who wrote Text A? Who wrote Text B? Which came first?
2. Learners read both texts silently.
3. Pairs complete the grid on 5C, section A: writer, reader, reason for writing, what the writer wants or offers.
4. Feedback on the board. Ask how they know Samira did not know the name of the person she was writing to. Answer: Dear Sir or Madam.

5. Ask whether Text B answers everything in Text A. Learners tick what Samira asked for and find the answer in Text B: an engineer (yes, Thursday), a quick visit (three days later), a reply to her calls (an apology).

Activity 3: Exam questions on two texts (30 minutes)

1. Tell learners that with two texts, each question says which text to read. Have them highlight Text A or Text B in every question on 5C, section B, before they answer anything.
2. Learners answer alone in 15 minutes.
3. Pairs compare and point to the proof.
4. Class feedback. After question 5, ask why Thursday morning suits Samira. The answer needs both texts: she is at home every morning, and the visit is between 9 and 11. Tell learners the exam does not need this, but it is good reading.
5. For question 9, write the three words in a column and compare letter by letter with engineer.

Activity 4: Build the reply (20 minutes)

1. Give each pair the six strips from 5A, section B. They are Samira's reply to Daniel, mixed up.
2. Pairs put the strips in order and decide which box from Activity 1 each strip belongs to.
3. Check on the board. Ask why she writes Dear Mr Okoro and Yours sincerely this time.
4. Pairs read the three messages aloud in order, as a conversation.

Activity 5: Read a real one (20 minutes)

1. Ask learners to take out any letter, text or email in English that they have on their phone or in their bag from the college, a doctor or the council. Learners without one share with a partner. Remind them to choose something they are happy to show.
2. Each learner finds four things and tells their partner: who wrote it, who it is for, why, and what they must do.
3. Hear four or five examples. Board any useful phrases that come up, such as appointment, please confirm, do not reply.
4. Close: learners tell their partner the two closings and when each is used.

Handout 5A: Formal and informal

Section A. Draw a line from the informal phrase to the formal phrase with the same meaning.

Informal	Formal
1. Hi Sam	A. I look forward to hearing from you.

Lesson 6: Web pages and layout features

Learners finish able to name the features of a web page or leaflet, say what each one is for, and use headings to find information fast. The paper asks why a feature such as bullet points is used (AC2.1).

Materials: Handouts 6A, 6B and 6C, one per learner. A4 paper and coloured pens for Activity 5. If the room has a projector, any simple web page to show in Activity 1, for example the college home page.

Activity 1: Name the parts (25 minutes, teacher-led)

1. Show a web page on the projector, or hold up handout 6B. Ask: “Do you read every word of a web page?” Establish that nobody does. Readers jump to what they need, and the layout helps them.
2. Point to each feature and elicit or teach its name. Write the names on the board: web address, menu, heading, subheading, bullet points, bold, link, contact details.
3. For each feature, ask what job it does. Build a second column: where the page lives; the other pages; the topic; the topic of one part; a list; something important; takes you to another page; how to reach someone.
4. Drill the names. Then point to features at random on 6B and learners call out the name.
5. Hand out 6A. Learners match each feature to its job, alone, then compare in pairs. Check quickly from the board.

Activity 2: Where would you look? (20 minutes)

1. Hand out 6B. Tell learners not to read it yet.
2. Ask ten quick questions. Learners answer with the heading only, not the answer: “You want to know the meeting time. Which heading?” “You want to know what to wear on your feet.” “You want to become a member.” “You want to know why walking is healthy.”
3. Now learners race in pairs to find the actual answers to the same ten questions. First pair to finish calls out.
4. Ask how they found answers so fast. Establish: read the headings first, then read only the part you need.

Activity 3: Read in detail (20 minutes)

1. Learners read the whole page silently.
2. Ask: Who is this page for? What does the group want readers to do? Take answers and ask for proof.
3. Check four words through the context: fit, left behind, waterproof, cancelled. For each, a learner reads the sentence and the class suggests the meaning.
4. Pairs take turns to cover the page and tell each other three facts they remember.

Activity 4: Exam questions (30 minutes)

1. Hand out 6C. Learners answer alone in 15 minutes.
2. Pairs compare. For the questions about features, they must explain the reason aloud to each other.
3. Class feedback. For question 1, ask why the other options are wrong: a conversation uses names and speech marks; a story uses paragraphs; prices need numbers.
4. For question 10, write the three lists on the board. Learners find the mistake in each wrong list by comparing second and third letters.

Activity 5: Design a page (25 minutes)

1. Read out the plain paragraph at the bottom of 6C about the homework club. Ask if it is easy to find the time or the room. It is not, because everything is in one block.
2. Pairs redesign it on A4 paper as a web page or poster. It must have a heading, at least two subheadings, one bullet list and one thing in bold.
3. Pairs display their pages on the wall. Everyone walks round and reads them.
4. Ask two test questions and see which page gives the answer fastest: “What time does it finish?” “What must you bring?”
5. Close: learners tell a partner why writers use bullet points, bold and headings.

Handout 6A: What is it for?

Match the feature to its job. Write the letter.

Feature	Letter		Job
1. Heading			A. Shows a list of short points
2. Bullet points			B. Takes you to another page
3. Bold			C. Tells you how to reach a person
4. Link			D. Tells you the topic of the page
5. Menu			E. Shows that something is important
6. Contact details			F. Shows the other pages on the site

Lesson 7: Short written answers

Learners finish able to answer Write two reasons and other short-answer questions by finding the information and writing it briefly, one point per line. The paper uses these for AC3.1 and they cost marks when learners write the same point twice or give their own opinion.

Materials: Handouts 7A, 7B and 7C, one per learner. Highlighters if available.

Activity 1: What kind of answer? (20 minutes, teacher-led)

1. Write six question words on the board: Why, Where, When, Who, How often, How many. Ask what kind of answer each one needs. Build a second column: a reason, a place, a time or day, a person, a number of times, a number.
2. Ask six fast questions about the college. Learners answer in two or three words only, not full sentences: “Where is the office?” “How often do you have class?” “Why do you study English?”
3. Tell learners that in the exam a short answer is enough. “On the first floor” gets the mark. A long sentence with mistakes may hide the answer.
4. Hand out 7A. Learners match the questions to the answers in section A, then circle the question word that helped. Check in pairs and as a class.
5. Show the common trap with section B: the question asks why, but one answer gives when. Learners choose the answer that fits the question word.

Activity 2: Find the reasons (25 minutes)

1. Write on the board: I was late because the bus broke down. Ask for the reason. Underline because. Elicit other words that signal a reason and board them: because, so, for two reasons, also, that is why.
2. Hand out 7B. Learners read the text once for the general idea. Ask: What is a clothes swap? Is it free?
3. Learners read again and highlight every place where the text gives a reason. They should find paragraph 2 (two reasons), paragraph 4 (why Joy started, why she needs helpers).
4. Pairs compare what they highlighted.
5. Feedback. For paragraph 2, show how for two main reasons tells the reader that two points follow, and also marks the second one. Number them 1 and 2 in the margin.

Activity 3: Write the answers (25 minutes)

1. Hand out 7C. Go through the three rules at the top: one point on each line; use words from the text; do not give your own ideas.
2. Learners answer section A alone in 15 minutes.
3. Pairs swap papers and check that each line has a different point.
4. Class feedback. Write the accepted answers on the board in their shortest form, for example expensive and waste. Show that these short answers are enough.
5. For question 2, three rules are possible and any two get the mark. Tell learners that when the text gives more than two, they choose any two and do not write all three on one line.

Activity 4: Be the marker (25 minutes)

1. Learners look at section B of 7C: five students’ answers to question 1.
2. In pairs, they decide how many correct points each student has given, 0, 1 or 2, and why.
3. Class feedback, one student at a time. Draw out the four lessons: Student B wrote one reason twice in different words; Student C wrote opinions that are not in the text; Student D put everything on one line, so the marker cannot see two separate points; Student E wrote very little and still has two correct points.

4. Learners look back at their own answers from Activity 3 and improve any that have the same problem.

Activity 5: Ask the class (25 minutes)

1. Each pair writes two new short-answer questions about the text. One must start with Write two…
2. Before they swap, pairs write their own answer key on the back.
3. Pairs swap questions, answer, and return them for marking.
4. Take the best three questions and put them to the class orally. Learners answer in three words or fewer.
5. Close: learners repeat the three rules to a partner from memory.

Handout 7A: Question words

Section A. Match the question to the answer. Write the letter.

1. Where is the class?			A. Twice a week
2. Why was he late?			B. Mrs Okafor

4. Who teaches the class?			D. On Friday
5. When is the exam?			E. Twelve
6. How many people came?			F. He missed the bus

Why did the library close early?

- A. On Monday
- B. The heating was broken
- C. Early

Handout 7B: Swap, Don’t Shop

1 On the first Saturday of every month, a school hall in Clapton is full of clothes. Nothing has a price. This is a clothes swap. People bring items they no longer wear and take home something different.

2 Clothes swaps are growing in London for two main reasons. New clothes are expensive, and many families cannot afford them. People also worry about waste, because so much clothing goes in the bin after only a few months.

3 The rules are simple. Each person can bring up to five items. They must be clean and in good condition. Shoes and children’s clothes are always welcome. Underwear and swimwear are not accepted.

4 Joy Adeyemi started the Clapton swap three years ago. “My children grow so fast,” she says. “I could not keep buying new school uniforms.” At the first event, only twelve people came. Now more than a hundred arrive each month, so Joy needs helpers to sort the clothes.

5 Anything left at the end of the day is not thrown away. Joy takes it to a charity shop or gives it to a local hostel.

Answer key, Lesson 7

- 7A Section A: 1 C, 2 F, 3 A, 4 B, 5 D, 6 E. Section B: B.
- 7C Section A: 1 New clothes are expensive; people worry about waste. 2 Any two of: up to five items; clean; in good condition. 3 Underwear; swimwear. 4 Once a month, or on the first Saturday of every month. 5 Her children grow fast, or she could not keep buying school uniforms. 6 More than a hundred people come, or to sort the clothes. 7 A charity shop; a local hostel.
- 7C Section B: A 2. B 1, the same reason twice. C 0, not from the text. D both points are there, but on one line: tell learners this is a risk and to use both lines. E 2.

Lesson 8: Notices, posters and leaflets

Learners finish able to scan short public texts for times, dates, prices and rules without reading every word, and to choose which of several texts holds the answer (AC3.1).

Materials: Handouts 8A and 8B, one per learner. A clipboard or book to lean on for Activity 5.

Activity 1: What does the answer look like? (20 minutes, teacher-led)

1. Write a question on the board: How much is a ticket? Ask what the answer will look like on the page. Elicit: a pound sign and a number. Repeat with What time…? (numbers with am or pm), What date…? (a number and a month), Who…? (a capital letter), Where…? (a capital letter, or Room, Road, Hall).
2. Board the table: question word, what to look for. Explain that this is scanning: the eyes move fast and stop only at the right shape.
3. Demonstrate. Hold up handout 8A and say: “I want the price of a large wash. I do not read. I look for pound signs.” Run your finger down the page and stop at each pound sign until you reach the right one.
4. Hand out 8A. Give three practice questions, one at a time. Learners put a finger on the answer and hold up the other hand when they have it: “Find a phone number.” “Find a date.” “Find the price of a dryer.”
5. Ask what they did not do. They did not read the whole page. Praise this.

Activity 2: Scan race (20 minutes)

1. Pairs sit with one copy of 8A between them.
2. Read out twelve questions, one at a time. The first pair to call the correct answer wins a point. Keep the score on the board. Use: What time does the launderette open on Sunday? How much is a small wash? What day is the fun day? What time does the fun day finish? Where is it? How much does it cost to go in? What is Ben’s number? What time does the dentist open? When is the dentist shut for lunch? How old are the children who get a free check-up? How long does one pound give you in the dryer? When are launderette staff there?
3. After each answer, the winning pair says which text it was in and what they looked for.
4. At the end, ask which questions were slowest and why. Usually these are the ones where the question uses different words from the text.

Activity 3: Which text? (25 minutes)

1. Learners now read all three texts properly, in silence.
2. Check four words from context: last wash, entry, practice, emergency.
3. Learners complete section A of 8B alone: for each sentence, they write A, B or C for the text that it matches.
4. Pairs compare and show each other the line.
5. Feedback. For sentence 4, two texts mention children, so learners must read the detail and not stop at the first match. Name this habit: check the whole sentence, not one word.

Activity 4: Exam questions (30 minutes)

1. Learners answer section B of 8B alone in 15 minutes.
2. Pairs compare.
3. Class feedback. Question 3 needs a small step: the launderette shuts at 6pm on Sunday and the last wash is one hour before, so the answer is 5pm. Ask a learner to explain the step.
4. For question 7, ask which words in the poster give the answer. No parking is short and easy to miss.
5. Take a show of hands for each question and note the weakest two for revision.

Activity 5: Notice hunt (25 minutes)

1. Give each pair section C of 8B. They have ten minutes to walk around the corridor, the entrance and the canteen, and find a real notice for each item.
2. For each one they copy the key fact, for example the time or the number.
3. Back in class, pairs compare what they found with another pair.
4. Hear one example for each item. Ask the purpose of each notice: to inform, to warn or to instruct.
5. Close: learners tell a partner what to look for when a question asks How much and What time.

- 8B Section B: 1 £6.50. 2 Card; coins. 3 A. 4 B. 5 Saturday 24 October. 6 Any two of: face painting; games; listen to music. 7 False. 8 1pm to 2pm. 9 A list of their medicines. 10 C. 11 card, children, closing, coins, dryer.

Lesson 9: Synonyms, opposites and word families

Learners finish able to match a word in the text with a simpler word of the same meaning, use an opposite as a clue, and recognise different forms of the same word. This builds AC1.4 and helps with every question, because questions rarely repeat the words of the text.

Materials: Handouts 9A, 9B and 9C, one per learner. The sixteen word cards from 9A cut up, one set per pair.

Activity 1: Same meaning, different word (25 minutes, teacher-led)

1. Write on the board: The shop is big. The store is large. Ask if the two sentences mean the same. Underline the pairs. Teach the word synonym and say it is the exam's favourite trick: the text says one word and the question says another.
2. Call out eight easy words. Learners shout a synonym: start, small, happy, begin, quick, difficult, speak, old. Accept anything close.
3. Give each pair the sixteen cards from 9A. They match them into eight synonym pairs on the desk.
4. Check on the board. Drill pronunciation of elderly, exhausted, pleased, doubtful.
5. Pairs play memory: cards face down, turn two over, keep them if they are synonyms. Five minutes.
6. Learners write the eight pairs in the table on 9A to keep.

Activity 2: Opposites as clues (20 minutes, teacher-led)

1. Write: The street is usually noisy, but on Sunday it is peaceful. Ask what peaceful means. Ask how they know. Establish that but tells the reader an opposite is coming, so peaceful is the opposite of noisy.
2. Board more signal words for opposites: but, however, not… but…, at first… now…
3. Give three more sentences orally and ask for the meaning of the last word each time: "My old flat was huge, but this one is tiny." "At first she was nervous. Now she is relaxed." "The soup was not hot but lukewarm."
4. Hand out 9B. Learners read the text once for the general idea. Ask: What is a quiet hour? Who likes it? Does everyone like it?
5. Learners find two places where an opposite helps with a new word. Take answers: bright in paragraph 1 and dim in paragraph 2; At first he was doubtful… In fact… in paragraph 4.

Activity 3: Word meaning questions (30 minutes)

1. Hand out 9C. Learners answer section A alone in 15 minutes, with no dictionaries or phones.
2. Pairs compare. For each answer they tell each other the clue they used.
3. Class feedback. For each question ask: "Which words near it helped?" For question 1, the clue is the list loud, bright and crowded. For question 5, the clue is the next sentence, where shoppers complain.
4. For the true or false items, remind learners of Lesson 4: find the word, read around it, then decide.
5. Section A, question 8 asks learners to find a word in the text from its meaning. Show the method: go to the paragraph, try each likely word in place of the meaning, and see which one fits.

Activity 4: Word families (25 minutes, teacher-led then pairs)

1. Write manage on the board. Ask who manages a shop. Write manager. Ask for other -er people: shopper, teacher, driver, cleaner.
2. Write noise and noisy. Ask which is a thing and which describes. Add quiet and quietly, complain and complaint.
3. Explain why this matters: the text may say complain and the question may say complaint. It is the same idea.
4. Learners complete section B of 9C alone, changing the word in brackets to fit the sentence.

5. Check in pairs and on the board. Spell the answers aloud together.

Activity 5: Say it another way (20 minutes)

1. Read out a sentence from the text. Pairs rewrite it with at least one word changed for a synonym, keeping the meaning. Example: “Elderly customers said they felt calmer” becomes “Old shoppers said they felt more relaxed.”
2. Do five sentences. After each, hear two versions and let the class judge if the meaning is the same.
3. Explain that this is exactly what the people who write exam questions do.
4. Close: each learner chooses three new words from today and writes them with a synonym in their notebook.

Handout 9A: Synonym cards

Cut up for Activity 1.

start	begin	shop	store
old	elderly	very tired	exhausted
happy	pleased	short	brief
not sure	doubtful	loud	noisy

My synonym pairs

Word	Same meaning

Handout 9B: Shopping Without the Noise

1 Supermarkets are usually loud, bright and crowded. For some customers this is exhausting. Now a number of London stores offer a ‘quiet hour’ once a week.

2 During the quiet hour, the store turns off the music and makes the lights dim. Staff do not use the loudspeaker, and they stop filling the shelves. The tills make no beeping sounds.

3 The idea began for shoppers with autism, who often find noise painful. However, managers soon noticed that other people liked it too. Elderly customers said they felt calmer. Parents with babies said the visit was easier.

4 Peter Lowe manages a store in Stratford. At first he was doubtful. “I thought we would lose money,” he says. “In fact, the quiet hour is now one of our busiest times.”

5 Not everybody is pleased. Some shoppers complain that the store is too dark to read the labels. Others say one hour a week is too brief.

6 Peter’s store holds its quiet hour on Tuesdays from 9am to 10am. He hopes to add a second session at the weekend.

Lesson 10: Linking words and what they tell you

Learners finish able to use because, so, but, however, also, although and if to follow the ideas in a text, and to say what this and these point back to. This supports AC1.3 and AC1.1, and helps learners predict what comes next.

Materials: Handouts 10A, 10B and 10C, one per learner. Eight linking word cards for Activity 5, one set per group of four: and, also, because, so, but, however, if, although.

Activity 1: Four jobs (25 minutes, teacher-led)

1. Draw four boxes on the board labelled add, reason, result, opposite.
2. Say four sentences about yourself, pausing before the linking word: “I like coffee… and I like tea.” “I was late… because the train stopped.” “I was hungry… so I ate.” “I was tired… but I came to work.” After each, ask which box the linking word belongs in. Write it there.
3. Add the less common ones: also (add), however and although (opposite). Show that however starts a new sentence and has a comma after it.
4. Half-sentence game. Say the first half and the linking word; learners finish it: “I didn’t eat breakfast, so…” “I didn’t eat breakfast because…” “I didn’t eat breakfast, but…” Point out how the ending changes with each word.
5. Hand out 10A. Learners complete section A, matching the halves, then section B, choosing the correct word. Check in pairs, then on the board. For each item, ask which of the four jobs the word is doing.

Activity 2: What comes next? (25 minutes, teacher-led)

1. Do not hand out the text yet. Tell learners you will read a report about phones in schools and stop many times.
2. Read paragraph 2 of 10B aloud. Stop after because. Ask: “What comes next: a reason or a result?” Take guesses for the reason, then read on.
3. Stop after They also. Ask what kind of idea follows. Take guesses.
4. Read However at the start of paragraph 3 and stop. Ask: “Good news or a problem?” Establish that however means the opposite side is coming.
5. Continue in the same way through so in paragraph 4, If in paragraph 4 and although in paragraph 5.
6. Hand out 10B. Learners read silently and circle every linking word. Compare totals in pairs.

Activity 3: This, these, them (20 minutes)

1. Write on the board: Some parents want to phone their children. The school listened to these worries. Ask what these worries are. Draw the arrow back.
2. Explain that this and these often point back to a whole idea and not to one word. This is harder than he or she.
3. Learners find them in paragraph 1 and these worries in paragraph 4, and draw arrows.
4. Pairs explain to each other in their own words what the parents’ worries are.
5. Check as a class. Accept: they cannot contact their children; the journey home is long.

Activity 4: Exam questions (30 minutes)

1. Hand out 10C. Learners answer alone in 15 minutes.
2. Pairs compare and point to the linking word that helped, where there is one.

3. Class feedback. For question 5, show how although a few still complain makes all false. For question 8, show that At first… But now… signals a change.
4. Ask learners which two questions they could answer from the linking words alone.

Activity 5: Linking word story (20 minutes)

1. Groups of four. Put the eight linking word cards face down in the middle.
2. Give the first sentence: “Yesterday I lost my phone.”
3. Each learner in turn takes a card and must continue the story with a sentence that uses that word. The group decides if the sentence makes sense.
4. When the cards run out, shuffle and start a new story: “Last week my neighbour knocked on my door.”
5. Hear the best story from each group. Close by asking for the four jobs and one word for each.

Handout 10B: Phones Stay in the Locker

1 Many London secondary schools do not allow mobile phones during the school day. Students must switch them off at the gate and leave them in a locker.

2 Teachers at Park View School say the rule has helped. Students listen more carefully in lessons because nothing distracts them. They also talk to each other more at lunchtime. “The playground is noisy again,” says head teacher Mr Grant, “and I am glad.”

3 However, not all parents agree. Some want to contact their children during the day, especially if the journey home is long. One mother said she feels anxious when she cannot reach her son.

4 The school listened to these worries, so it changed the rule a little. Students may now use their phones at the gate after 3.30pm. If there is an emergency, parents can ring the school office.

5 Most students accept the rule, although a few still complain. Ravi, who is 14, says: “At first I hated it. But now I don’t think about my phone until I get home.”

Lesson 11: Dictionary order

Learners finish able to answer all three alphabetical question formats quickly: put five words in order, circle the word that comes after another in a dictionary, and choose the correctly ordered list. This is AC4.1, the last question in each task and three easy marks if the method is secure.

Materials: Handouts 11A, 11B and 11C, one per learner. A4 card and marker pens for name cards. Paper dictionaries if the college has a class set, one per pair. A timer.

Activity 1: Alphabet speed (20 minutes, teacher-led)

1. The class says the alphabet together once forwards. Then go round the room, one letter each, as fast as possible. Time it and try to beat the time.
2. Write the alphabet across the top of the board. Draw two lines to cut it into three parts: A to H, I to Q, R to Z. Tell learners a dictionary has a start, a middle and an end. Call out ten letters; learners call start, middle or end.
3. Quick fire: “What comes after M? Before F? After S?” Learners answer chorally, then individually.
4. Learners complete section A of 11A, writing the letter before and after. Check in pairs.
5. Insist on one habit for the exam: write the alphabet at the top of the page before starting any alphabetical question. Have learners do it now on 11A.

Activity 2: Human dictionary (20 minutes)

1. Each learner writes their first name large on a card. The class lines up in alphabetical order by first name, without your help. Check the line together by reading the names aloud.
2. Where two names start with the same letter, stop and ask the class how to decide. Move to the second letter, then the third.
3. Collect the cards. Give each learner a new card with a word from one set: station, stairs, stamp, start, stay, steal, step, stick, still, stop, story, street, strong, student, study, sugar, summer, sun. They line up again.
4. This is hard, so let them struggle and then check letter by letter on the board, in columns, circling the first letter that is different.

Activity 3: Before and after (25 minutes, teacher-led then pairs)

1. Write on the board: Circle the word which comes after ‘market’ in a dictionary: make, money, man. Ask learners to guess. Many will choose wrongly, because they look only at the first letter.
2. Teach the column method. Write all four words in a column with the letters lined up. Compare letter by letter and put them in order: make, man, market, money. The word after market is below it in the list.
3. Stress the meaning of the question: after means later in the dictionary, lower in the list. Before means earlier, higher in the list.
4. Do one before example together with school: shop, say, street.
5. Learners complete section B of 11A in pairs, writing the column for each item in the margin.
6. Check on the board. Invite learners up to write the columns.

Activity 4: Guide words (25 minutes)

1. If you have paper dictionaries, hand them out. Show the two words at the top of a page. Explain that they are the first and last word on that page, and every word on the page sits between them.

2. Race: call a word. Pairs find the page and call out the two guide words. Do six words. If there are no dictionaries, skip to step 3.
3. Hand out 11B. Model the first page on the board: guide words garden and give. Test gate: it comes after garden and before give, so it is on the page. Test glass: it comes after give, so it is not.
4. Pairs complete both pages.
5. Check as a class. For each word ask: “Before the first guide word, on the page, or after the last one?”

Activity 5: Three formats against the clock (30 minutes)

1. Hand out 11C face down. Explain that there are three formats, as in the exam, and they have 12 minutes.
2. Remind them: alphabet at the top; columns in the margin; cross off each word once used; count the words at the end.
3. Start the timer. Learners work alone in silence.
4. Learners swap and mark as you give the answers. For any wrong answer, the marker finds the letter where it went wrong and circles it.
5. Ask for scores by show of hands. Anyone with full marks explains their method to the class in one sentence.
6. Close: “What do you write first?” “The alphabet.” “What do you compare?” “The first letter that is different.”

Handout 11A: Before and after

Write the alphabet here: _____

Circle the word which comes before the bold word in a dictionary.

Lesson 12: Instructions and the order of steps

Learners finish able to recognise an instruction text, follow its steps, and put steps or events in the right order when the question uses different words. This covers AC1.2 and AC2.1.

Materials: Handouts 12A, 12B and 12C, one per learner. The six strips from 12A cut up, one set per pair. One sheet of scrap A4 paper per learner.

Activity 1: Do what I say (20 minutes, teacher-led)

1. Give each learner a sheet of scrap paper. Give six spoken instructions, one at a time, and do them yourself a second later so that nobody is lost: “Fold the paper in half. Open it. Fold the top corners to the middle. Fold it in half again. Fold the sides down. Throw it.” The class makes paper planes.
2. Ask what you said first. Write the six instructions on the board as learners recall them.
3. Ask what kind of word starts each one. Underline the verbs. Establish that instructions start with an action word and have no you.
4. Ask how a reader knows the order when instructions are written. Elicit and board: numbers; first, then, next, after that, finally.
5. Ask where learners see written instructions. Collect examples: a ticket machine, a medicine box, a form, a recipe, a washing machine.

Activity 2: Jumbled instructions (20 minutes)

1. Give each pair the six strips from 12A. They put them in order.
2. Before checking, ask pairs which words helped. Elicit: First and Finally; While the water is heating must come after the kettle is on; it in Switch it on points back to the kettle.
3. Check the order on the board.
4. Pairs turn the strips over and tell each other the instructions from memory, using first, then, after that, finally.
5. Point out the link to Lesson 10: small words such as it, then and while hold the order together.

Activity 3: Read the instructions (25 minutes)

1. Ask who is registered with a doctor and how they did it. Take two or three answers.

2. Hand out 12B. Learners look for ten seconds only. Ask: “How do you know this is instructions?” They should name the numbers, the title How to… and the short sentences starting with verbs.
3. Learners read silently. Then ask oral questions that need the right step: “Which step tells you what to write?” “Which step happens last?” “Where does it say what to do if your English is not strong?”
4. Check four words from context: surgery, register, receptionist, interpreter.
5. Pairs cover the text and tell each other the six steps in order.

Activity 4: Exam questions (30 minutes)

1. Hand out 12C. Learners answer alone in 15 minutes.
2. Pairs compare.
3. Class feedback. For question 2, show that the events are written in different words from the steps: complete the form is fill in the form; hand the form in is give the form to the receptionist. Learners match each event to a step number first, then write the order.
4. For question 5, ask for the sentence that proves it: You can still register if you do not have them.
5. For question 10, write the five words in a column. Four of them start with fi, so learners go to the third letter and then the fourth.

Activity 5: Write five steps (25 minutes)

1. Each pair chooses something they know how to do: cook rice, get from the station to the college, send a photo by phone, top up a phone.
2. They write five numbered steps, each starting with a verb, using at least two sequence words.
3. They copy the steps onto a second sheet in the wrong order and without numbers, and pass it to another pair.
4. The second pair puts the steps in order and writes the numbers.
5. Return and check. Hear two sets read aloud.
6. Close: “How do you know a text gives instructions?” Learners name three signs.

Handout 12A: Strips for the teacher to cut up

Pour the hot water into the cup.
Finally, add milk or sugar if you like.
First, fill the kettle with water.
Wait two minutes, then take out the tea bag.
Switch it on.
While the water is heating, put a tea bag in a cup.

Handout 12B: How to Register with a Doctor

Everyone in England can register with a GP, or family doctor. It is free. Follow these steps.

1. Find a surgery near your home. You can search on the NHS website or ask a neighbour.
2. Go to the surgery or visit its website. Ask for a registration form.
3. Fill in the form. Write your name, date of birth and address. If you have an NHS number, write that too.
4. Give the form to the receptionist. She may ask for ID or a letter with your address. You can still register if you do not have them.
5. Wait for a letter or text message. This usually arrives within two weeks. It tells you that you are registered.
6. Finally, book a new patient check. A nurse will ask about your health and any medicines you take.

Remember

- Do not wait until you are ill. Register as soon as you move to a new area.
- If you need help with English, ask for an interpreter when you book. This service is free.
- In an emergency, call 999.

Lesson 13: Full mock paper and review

Learners sit a complete paper in exam conditions: three tasks, 21 questions, 60 minutes, in the same order of criteria as the sample paper. They then find out which criteria they have met and work on the weakest.

Materials: Handout 13A, the mock paper, one per learner. Handout 13B, the results grid, one per learner. Spare copies of handouts from Lessons 1 to 12 for the clinics. Blue or black pens.

Activity 1: Before the paper (10 minutes, teacher-led)

1. Set the room: desks apart, bags on the floor, phones off and away.
2. Elicit the routine and board it: read the title; read the first sentences; read the whole text once; answer; check each answer against the text.
3. Remind learners of four rules: write in pen; no dictionary; do the questions in any order; never leave a blank.
4. Tell them there are three tasks and about 20 minutes for each. Write the three changeover times on the board.

Activity 2: The mock paper (60 minutes)

1. Hand out 13A face down. Learners write their name and the date, then start together.
2. Give no help with language. Answer only questions about what to do.
3. Announce each changeover time quietly. Do not make learners move on, but tell them where they should be.
4. Watch for learners who spend too long on one question. Note their names for the review.
5. Give a five-minute warning. At the end, pens down.

Activity 3: Mark and record (20 minutes)

1. Learners swap papers. Go through the answers from the key. For written answers, say exactly what is accepted.
2. Markers tick or cross each question in the margin and return the paper.
3. Hand out 13B. Each learner circles the question numbers they got right in the grid.

4. Explain how to read it. Each row is one skill, tested three times. The Entry 2 mark scheme in your project files says a learner must pass each criterion at least once. This grid applies the same rule. A row with no circles is a skill to work on.
5. Learners write their weakest row at the bottom of the grid.

Activity 4: Clinics (25 minutes)

1. Group learners by their weakest row. Use the table below to give each group the matching handout from an earlier lesson.
2. Each group reworks the questions they got wrong in the mock, together, finding the proof in the text. Then they do the earlier handout again as extra practice.
3. Sit with the group for 3.1 and 1.2 first. Written answers lose the most marks.
4. Learners with every row circled work as helpers, one per group. They may give hints and may not give answers.

Weakest row	Skill	Use handouts from
1.1	Main points	Lessons 1 and 4
1.2	Finding details	Lessons 2 and 7
1.3	Pronouns and features	Lessons 2, 6 and 10

2.1	Purpose	Lessons 1, 5 and 12
3.1	Written answers	Lessons 7 and 8
4.1	Alphabetical order	Lessons 3 and 11

Activity 5: Plan (5 minutes)

1. Each learner writes one sentence on 13B: “Before the exam I will practise…”
2. Collect the grids. They show you what to revise as a class before exam day.

Handout 13A: Mock paper

Name: _____ Date: _____

Time: 60 minutes. Answer all the questions. Use blue or black pen. Do not use a dictionary.

Task 1. Read the text and answer questions 1 to 7.

HACKNEY NEWS: Libraries to Open on Sundays

A survey of 2,000 local residents shows that people want libraries to open for longer. Almost seven in ten said the present hours do not suit them. From January, three libraries in the borough will open on Sundays for the first time.

The survey found that people use libraries for many activities:

- borrowing books
- using free computers and wifi
- studying in a quiet place
- meeting friends at reading groups

Many residents said they cannot visit during the week because they work or study. Parents said that weekends are the only time they can bring their children. Some older residents said the library is warmer than their home in winter, so they spend the whole day there.

The Sunday opening will cost the council more money. To pay for it, the libraries will close one hour earlier on Mondays and will ask volunteers to help the staff.

Text A

Dear Sir or Madam,

I would like to join the Level 1 computer course. I saw the poster in the college reception.

I use a computer at home to send emails, but I want to learn more. I would like to write letters and use spreadsheets because I hope to work in an office one day. I studied a beginners’ course at my last college in 2024.

I can come to class in the mornings. I cannot come in the afternoons because I collect my daughter from school.

I look forward to hearing from you.

Yours faithfully,

Good Food Cheap: Food of the Month

Lentils

Lentils are small, round seeds. People have eaten them for thousands of years. They are popular in India, the Middle East and East Africa, and you can buy them in every UK supermarket.

Lentils do not cost much. One bag can make a meal for six people. They come in different colours. Red lentils are soft and cook in about 15 minutes. Green and brown lentils stay firm and need about 30 minutes.

Why eat lentils?

- Lentils are full of protein, so they are a good choice if you do not eat meat.
- They contain fibre, which is good for your stomach.
- They give you iron, which helps you feel less tired.

How to cook them

Wash the lentils in cold water. Put them in a pan and cover them with water. Boil them gently until they are ready. Add salt at the end, not at the beginning.

Enjoy lentils in soups, curries, salads and stews.
