Broadway Market

1 Broadway Market is a street near London Fields and the Regent's Canal. During the week it is a quiet street with small shops, cafés and a bookshop. But every Saturday it changes completely. More than a hundred stalls fill the road, and thousands of people come from all over London.

2 The Saturday market is famous for food. You can buy fresh bread, cheese, cakes and flowers, or eat hot food from many different countries. The food is delicious, but it is often expensive – a coffee and a cake can cost eight or nine pounds. If you want to save money, walk slowly along the street first and look at all the prices before you buy.

3 The market gets very crowded after eleven o'clock, so try to arrive early. It is a nice walk from London Fields, and you can sit by the canal to eat.
